

DENNIS LOESCH

numerous

12. January - 23. February 2008

Jan Winkelmann / Berlin is looking forward to the third solo exhibition of Dennis Loesch.

With "numerous" Dennis Loesch presents a series of new works based upon a digital brushstroke created by the artist. It is composed through the duplication and shifting of the letter string "DENNISLOESCH" and functions as a universally applicable drawing tool for the artist.

The exhibition features ten pieces, each of which depicts a number and/or punctuation mark. Alongside canvases of various sizes and stele-like fabric sculptures, small-format works on paper as well as a pile of posters are to be seen. Combined, the pieces provide the date of the exhibition opening, reducing the event to a cipher of numbers and characters. As Joy Kristin Kalu states in the publication to the exhibition, "They illustrate minimalistically how signifier and signified actually concur (...) and, with slight variations, all deal anecdotically with originality and self-reference."

Dennis Loesch (* 1979) lives in Berlin.
